

UNEXTINGUISHED FIRES

JUSTICE MILLER FINES THREE L. A. CAMPERS AND REPRIMANDS SCHOOL BOYS

Justice Harry M. Miller reports that three Glendale boys, one Glendale man, three Los Angeles men and a boy from La Crescenta were brought before him Tuesday charged with a violation of the law in leaving three fires unextinguished on departing from camps in Tejuja canyon. From his account there would appear to have been three different parties and as many camp fires. On the three Los Angeles men, F. W. Brewer, W. T. Campbell and H. Ray Hoffman, he imposed the minimum fine of $50 each, letting the boys off with suspended sentences and reprimands, with the understanding that they should contribute to the fines imposed on the three men since they, although minors, were also in fault. Among those who appeared before the Justice were Edward Newcomb, Milton Brown, T. R. Ellen and Paul McCowan of Glendale, Eugene Kreiner of La Crescenta and John Younce, of Los Angeles. None of the parties intended to do any harm. They were simply careless.

He is not unacquainted with army life for he saw service in the Spanish-American war. He was offered the position of Government Binocular Inspector at Washington, but preferred active service. He leaves today, Wednesday, for Chicago, where the branch to which he is to be assigned will be made known to him. Of course he is hoping to get to the other side of the pond very soon.

GLENDAL MAKES A HIT

Members of the Elks Lodge report that the soldier boys in Companies C and D of the Coast Artillery now at the rifle range, to whom the freedom of the club house has been given, including the use of the bath rooms, the card and billiard rooms, seem most appreciative. They are simply camping on the range, where they are getting their last practice and having intensive training. They get busy at 6:30 a. m. in the trenches and firing pits and keep at it until 7 p. m., when it must be a treat to them to come down town and have a bath. Thirty were at the club house Monday night and were entertained with refreshments after the lodge session. One soldier boy from Toledo, in conversation with an Elk declared if he ever got out of the army and settled down to civilian life he was coming to Glendale to make his home because he was so impressed with the character of its people and their hospitality.

ELDER MARVIN

NOBLE MAN PASSES TO HIS REWARD—FUNERAL TO BE HELD SATURDAY AT 3 O'CLOCK

Death came suddenly to Elder Charles F. Marvin Tuesday morning, July 2d, 1918, at his home at 412 Cedar street. He had been in rather poor health for some time, but had performed his accustomed duties and Monday went to Highland Park to superintend some work there. There was no hint of any acute trouble until he suddenly expired without warning. It was a very great shock to his family, especially to his wife, who has been in frail health for some time. Fortunately, two of his three daughters, Mrs. R. J. McKeague of the Hawaiian Islands, and Mrs. A. W. Russell of Fallon, Nevada, are here and were with their mother when the sad event occurred. The other daughter, Mrs. R. V. Ashley, resides in Battle Creek, Mich., and arrangements for funeral services will be deferred until word is received from her as to whether she will be able to come or not. Doctors ascribe the cause of death to perforation of a gastric ulcer.

Elder Marvin was born in Belmont, New York, February 26th, 1854. His early life was spent in Vermont. Later for a number of years he was connected with the "Review and Herald" of Battle Creek, Michigan, as foreman of the electrotype foundry. Following a serious breakdown in health he came to Southern California in 1901 and has since resided in this state, coming to Glendale in 1905. He has always been very active in the work of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, and up to last Sabbath had charge of the services of several churches. His death will be felt as a great loss to the Pacific Union Conference and to the church generally.

Later, the funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at three o'clock at the Jewel City Undertaking parlors.

EXEMPTION BOARD NEWS

Members of the Exemption Board will have an all-day session today to review questionnaires on file, with a view to the reclassification of men in the deferred classes.

Fifty-eight notices were mailed Tuesday to men who have married since May 18, 1917, asking for certain information as to dependents, etc., which when received will determine their classifications.

Attorney H. P. Goodwin of 142 West Tenth street was at the Exemption Board Tuesday afternoon to assist registrants who might need help in filling out their questionnaires. Today, Wednesday, is the last day for filing them.

DINNER PARTY

Miss Dorothy Hobbs was hostess on Saturday at an informal dinner at her home, 600 North Central avenue, to honor Miss Pauline Hamilton of 303 West Tenth street, who has just returned from her year at school in Cedar Falls, Iowa, where she will return again in the fall. The guests gathered early and spent several pleasant hours with their knitting. Following the dinner, a theater party was enjoyed at the Palace Grand. Those present, besides the hostess and the guest of honor, were Misses Kathleen Dodge, Esther Schremp, Ernestine Lyon, Mary Logan, Amie Miller and Mrs. Katherine Ripley.

FAREWELL RECEPTION

A farewell reception has been planned for Friday evening at the Baptist church to honor Rev. and Mrs. Vernon H. Cowser, who will leave soon to take up their residence at Corning, Cal., where Rev. Cowser has accepted a new charge. The family is spending the month of July at Hermosa Beach. Those in charge of the affair promise an interesting program in addition to refreshments and a good time socially. Among the musical numbers will be songs by the men's quartette, made up of Albert Marple, Mr. Nelson, Jacob Gray and Mr. Walker, who will be accompanied by Miss Evelyn Kent. Mrs. Marian Stanton is in charge of refreshments and Mrs. Houdyshell and Mrs. Marsh are planning the program.

FAVORS A WAR CHEST

A. T. Cowan, Editor, Glendale Evening News.

Dear Sir:

In suggesting a "War Chest" for Glendale I am in keeping with the plan of other cities, namely, Philadelphia and other smaller cities throughout the country. We are face to face with so many Drives, and many more are on the way, it would seem to be good business sense to combine as other towns are.

The plan in brief is this: One complete and thorough Drive is made each year and every one is expected to pledge so much a month, on the same general plan of the War Savings.

Out of the amount secured a division is made by a special committee among the various objects presented. According to this plan every one would be giving to all causes and not to some at the expense of others. It would also be a great saving of time and strength, and it has been found that the results are far more satisfactory.

Besides the direct appeal by the Government, in a few weeks we are to have another Drive for the Y. M. C. A. work. The Salvation Army has a National plan for a Drive in the near future. The Y. W. C. A. will also make appeals and the end is not yet.

In view of all this, why is not the "War Chest" a most logical scheme for meeting our duty in a more practical way. All further details can be worked out by the special committee.

REV. W. E. EDMONDS.

MILITARY BALL

The Masonic bodies in Glendale, consisting of the Blue Lodge, Royal Arch Chapter, Eastern Star and Knights Templar, will give an informal dance Friday evening of this week at the Masonic Temple, complimentary to the soldier boys now camped at the rifle range, providing the consent of the officers in charge can be had to allow the boys to be off duty that evening. The intention is to have the best of music, possibly serve light refreshments, and give the boys a real enjoyable entertainment. The ladies have been working on this for some little time and hope to have a sufficient attendance of the ladies of Glendale to fill the hall. It is the intention of the committee to have the floor reserved entirely for the soldiers. The grand march will start at 8:30.

RETURNED FROM VACATION

Dr. C. Stuart Steelman and family, of Seventh street, have returned from Hermosa, where they spent the month of June. The doctor reports they had exceedingly pleasant weather and that he considers it an exceptionally nice beach because it does not have the dangerous undertow found in some places. He also says it is quiet and is settling up with a very nice class of people.

READY FOR FISH STORIES

Daniel Kelty, Jr., has just returned from a two weeks' fishing trip considerably burned by desert winds but looking much refreshed by his outing. He drove by auto to Bishop and from there made his way to a mountain camp at Mammoth which was right in the snow at an elevation of 9400 feet, where he says the best fishing in the state is to be had.

WEATHER FORECAST—Fair tonight and Thursday, cloudy along the coast, early tomorrow. Westerly winds.

NEW GYMNASIUM

HIGH SCHOOL TRUSTEES VOTE TO ERECT $5000 BUILDING ON CAMPS

Last Saturday the Board of Trustees of Glendale High School decided to build this summer a temporary structure for gymnasium use. The plans call for an all-wooden building 90x64 feet in dimensions, with maple floor and a composition roof, which will cost $5000. The contract has been awarded to Kent & Son of this city. Irving Oliver, business manager of the High School, will supervise its construction, which will be commenced at once that it may be ready when the fall term opens. It will contain shower baths and all needed conveniences, and it will be located beside the athletic field near the bleachers.

Under a new law, all the High Schools in the State are required to give pupils a certain number of periods of physical training. The basement of the High School where the gymnasium work has been performed was inadequate to meet the requirements of the law, hence the Board had no choice but to erect the building.

FAREWELL DINNER PARTY

A delightful picnic dinner party by way of farewell for their daughter, Miss Evangeline Hunchberger, was given last Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hunchberger of 344 South Central avenue, their house guest, Miss Rose Waldron of Los Angeles being also an honor guest. Miss Waldron, a college friend of Miss Hunchberger at Pomona and a member of the graduating class, will also be a pupil this summer of Prof. Pasamore of San Francisco, who will give the two girls vocal lessons during the summer months at Santa Barbara. They were accompanied to Santa Barbara on Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Hunchberger and little daughter, Virginia, who have since returned to Glendale. The girls will be at the Edgerly Court Apartments. At the dinner party in their honor, which was given at Griffith Park after several hours of scenic motoring, there were present Mr. and Mrs. Frank Truscott with their son, Fremont, and their daughter, Gladys, from Eagle Rock, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Gardiner and little son Joe, of Los Angeles. Mr. Gardiner is a brother of Mrs. Hunchberger. The party drove back to Glendale after their 8 o'clock dinner and enjoyed a musical evening until midnight.

HELP OUT THE SOLDIERS

Mrs. Ella Richardson, who has been extending beautiful hospitality to the soldier boys encamped at the rifle range and who is entertaining them Thursday evening at her home on Central avenue and Riverdale drive, is asking citizens to co-operate with her in getting the boys from the camp to the party. Because this is their last practice, the boys are doing intensive work and are on duty at 6:30 a. m., not quitting ordinarily until 7:30 or 8 p. m. Because of this social courtesy on the part of Mrs. Richardson, the officers have agreed to release the men at 7 o'clock. If, therefore, citizens who have automobiles will be at the range at that time and bring the boys to town, they will be able to make themselves presentable and ready for the party by eight o'clock. They are to leave camp Saturday and what we do for these particular boys must be done now, for we may not have another chance to show them attentions.

SORROW COMES TO MISS WAITE

Miss Ida Waite, Principal of the Colorado boulevard school, has just been advised by telegram of the death of her oldest sister, Mrs. Helen W. Affeld, at Evanston, Illinois. For several months Mrs. Affeld has been in a very critical state of health, induced by worry about a married daughter residing in Germany, from whom she has heard at very rare intervals in a roundabout way through Holland. The possibility that the daughter might be suffering privations preyed upon the mind of the mother and caused her physical collapse. It is one of the incidental tragedies of the war.

Roy Clayton, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Clayton of 504 1/2 South Orange street, went to Thornycroft Hospital recently for a remedial operation to enable him to enter the navy. He expects to be out in a few days and go to Los Angeles for another physical examination, when he hopes to be accepted for service. Though his father and mother find it hard to part with him, they are glad to have him patriotic enough to want to go.

FOURTH OF JULY

Tomorrow, July Fourth, is the National Independence Day. This day means a great deal to the people of the United States. The day should be appropriately observed by all people who seek protection under the folds of the Stars and Stripes. The principles set forth in the Declaration of Independence should be called to the attention of every citizen. The purpose for which this Government was established should be clearly understood. There is now a fight for freedom going on very similar to the fight waged at the time of the formation of the government.

The spirit of heroism that was so much in evidence in 1776 must be in evidence now if the tyrannical rule of the Kaiser is to be brought to an end.

May the significance of Independence Day this year be brought close to the minds of everybody—may the day be one of meditation and thoughtful consideration.

Germany has been robbed of another honor—that never did belong to her. As a result of the campaign instituted by L. C. Johnson of Pomona to find a new name for sauerkraut, the well known dainty has been rechristened "choucrou" pronounced "shoot-croo." And in the course of the campaign it was learned that sauerkraut never was a German viand, but was the national dish of Alsace-Lorraine and attained the greatest popularity in stricken Belgium. The prize offered for the best name went to the Red Cross because 27 out of 500 who made suggestions agreed on "choucrou."

DOLORES

By Margaret A. Henderson

The whole world seemed bright to Dolores, as the "big house on the water," as she called the ship, left her moorings and steamed out into the broad Atlantic—to bear her away to America where, with her father, she hoped to find that uncle who, years before, had sought his fortune with other of his kinsmen in that far-away country.

Her happiness knew no bounds as she played about the decks, making friends with everyone, returning a big, cheery smile when addressed in a language she did not know; and chatting familiarly when her own soft Spanish tones were understood. Yes, Dolores was happy and everybody else was happy, too—so far as she could see—and her big brown eyes could see a lot. But, bye and bye, when the great ship was three days out at sea, she wondered why everyone was so silent. Those who had petted and played with her before, hardly noticed her now; and when she asked the reason, her father gathered her in his strong arms and held her so tight the big world was lost to her childish vision, and she knew only that little world of love right there on her father's bosom.

So the days passed, the ship sped on, the cholera claimed another victim—and Juan Ortega's bright-eyed darling was alone in the world.

Dolores, contrary to her name, was blessed with a cheery disposition. Hardly past the baby stage of life, she soon forgot the happy days in that quaint Spanish village where she had first beheld the light of day; and like a bright and dainty flower transplanted by the All-knowing Hand, she flourished in a new garden, which a hundred others of God's little human flowers, called home. Here, gentle, sweet-faced sitters ministered to her wants, taught her to love and to trust; and were ever ready to smooth out the rough places in the path of this precious charge.

Was not the sun as bright in her new Los Angeles home as in her own native village? Here, too, were gay flowers, stately palms, and the little birds she had known over there—and so many congenial playmates—more than she had ever had before.

Little wonder the past was lost in this new environment. The years passed quickly and Dolores, nearing womanhood, must make her way in the world, to her yet unknown.

"No," replied the clerk to Dolores' timid inquiry, "you did not leave your purse here."

"Thank you," she said sweetly, then walked briskly from the store.

"Gad, man!" remarked the clerk to the cashier, as his eyes followed the dainty form of the retreating girl, "I'd give a good big purse for a pretty girl like that, damn'd if I wouldn't."

"Yep, she's a picture," replied the other, "the artist never lived who could paint a face like that. Some rich old Don has the strings on that cherub, and I wager she will break many a heart before he releases her."

"It's lucky for me," Dolores was saying to herself as she reached the street, "that I had bought my shoes. There was only a little change in the purse and perhaps somebody will find it who needs it more than I, and I shall not mind walking home, but I wish I had gotten my new hair ribbon, too. Oh, well, I can wear my old one another Sunday, and next week I shall come down town again and I'll be careful enough next time."

So on she walked up Spring street, musing to herself the while, but never stopping to look into the shop windows, as she always did when she came down town. It was a treat to see all the fine things, and she often imagined herself shopping as rich ladies do. My! what a lot of beautiful clothes she would have if she were a rich lady. Then her thoughts reverted to more serious things.

She had turned into Main street and was approaching the old Plaza church now. How she wished she had time to go in. The sisters had taken her there once and it was such a quaint old place and so cool and quiet—who wouldn't want to stop there such a warm afternoon and rest? But she must be home in time to get dinner. Mrs. Stevens would not scold—she was always so kind and good to her and ready to help—but it was her duty to be there and she had been taught never to shirk a duty. So she would walk a little faster and not be late. How glad she was that the vegetables were prepared and the simple dessert on the ice all ready to be served. No, she was not tired and she had gone quite a distance, too, half way perhaps, she was not sure, having always ridden before, but her feet were beginning to hurt—the sidewalks were so hot from the July sun. Had she passed the old cemetery? No, it was just beyond the curve in the street. She could stop there a while and (the thought made her laugh) change her shoes.

"I wonder, she mused, almost aloud, "if rich ladies wear their new shoes home? But rich ladies ride in fine carriages, so their feet wouldn't hurt anyway. Sister always had us children take our old shoes home in a bundle. 'Wouldn't matter so much if we lost them,' she used to say, and sometimes the children would lose them on purpose.

"I'm glad I never played such tricks, but we all wanted to wear our best shoes and lots of the children would have to play around barefooted until they'd confess to sister that they had thrown their old shoes down the steep hill at the back of the orphanage, and she would let them go down and get them.

"'Pride is wicked,' she used to tell us, but surely it could not be very wicked to wear nice things and look pretty. The rich ladies were all proud and Mrs. Stevens was proud, too, perhaps. At least she always wore beautiful clothes and looked so pretty, but she wasn't wicked, indeed, Mrs. Stevens was an angel."

She had reached the old cemetery now and would go in and sit under a tree. No, it looked too lonesome in there. She would sit on the stone step at the entrance and put on her old shoes.

"Whew! how good it feels to get those shoes off!" She took the old pair from the bundle and tied the new ones up neatly, thinking the while how fortunate she was to be able to buy her own things now.

She had sat there quite a while when she again thought of home and the dinner to be gotten. Her feet were rested and she would not mind the remainder of the walk. But what was the matter? The old shoes were tight, too, and how her feet hurt again.

Workman street was still a long way off—she had just reached the bridge—how sorry she should be to be late after all.

She walked laboriously on a few feet, then leaned against the rail and gazed down at the river below, a languid stream, barely a dozen feet in width. If only she could bathe her burning feet in that running water—but it would take too long to go back, then down to the river, even though she could wade across and go up the opposite bank.

Not a soul had passed since she left the cemetery. She must inquire the time of the first person she met.

She did not have to wait long. Hearing the thud of a horse's hoof as it touched the bridge, she turned quickly, to come face to face with a brown, broad-shouldered, heavy-set Mexican, who, upon noticing the enquiring expression on the face of the girl, checked up his horse with 'one jerk of the rein and raised his hat politely.

"Please, sir," said Dolores and the sound of her own voice sent her

PROVISION FOR AMERICAN PRISONERS

The Department of States has received a most cordial reply from the Swiss Government in response to its letter asking if the Swiss Government would entertain a proposal for an arrangement for the repatriation or internment in a neutral country of certain categories of invalid prisoners of war, i. e., the internment of American prisoners captured by Germany who might come within categories to be specified. The Swiss Government was also asked if it would designate a Swiss Medical Commission to visit American prisoners in Germany for the purpose of passing upon the eligibility of prisoners for internment in a neutral country or for repatriation. It was stated that the United States would gladly pay all proper expenses which the Swiss Government might incur and would also agree to feed all American prisoners who might be interned in Switzerland from the stocks placed at the disposal of the American prisoners' central committee by the American War and Navy Departments. The letter further stated that the United States fully realized the great burden which the Swiss Government had already assumed in the humanitarian treatment of so many invalid prisoners of war from various belligerent nations, and that a favorable reply from Switzerland would be received with extreme appreciation and gratification.

The letter of the Swiss Government transmitted through the American Minister at Berne, says:

"It is hardly necessary to assure you, Mr. Minister, that your compatriots would find the best welcome in Switzerland, for the authorities and all the population would congratulate themselves to be able to give under this form a new proof of their friendly sentiments to the great sister Republic, America.

"Your Excellency, who knows well the present economic difficulties of our country, will understand on the other hand that the number of Americans interned to be received will depend essentially on the general situation of Switzerland as well as on the number of interned from other countries who may be on our territory at the time when the internment of Americans should start, but you can be sure that we will do everything in our power to conform to your desire in all cases.

"We are very touched with the generous offer to put at that time at our disposition provisions from the 'American Prisoners' Central Committee,' which we would accept certainly with gratitude. To avoid all misunderstandings, however, we believe we must observe even now that this help from the point of view of nourishment can not be sent directly to interned Americans, the Swiss Federal Government adopting the principle that the interned should be treated, as far as concerns their rations in all foodstuffs, on exactly the same footing as the Swiss population.

"We add that the competent Swiss authorities will be happy to lend their help for the nomination of Swiss doctors in an understanding with the German authorities for the repatriation or internment of American prisoners of war."

Berlin Informed Through Spain

The Department of State, under date of June 15, through the Spanish embassy in Berlin, informed the German Government that the Swiss Government has consented to the internment in Switzerland of such invalid American prisoners as might be eligible for internment in a neutral country by virtue of an informal agreement that might be entered into between the Governments of the United States and Germany. Germany has been further informed that Switzerland has consented to appoint a special commission to visit prisoners in Germany and to pass on the eligibility for internment in a neutral country or repatriation. The German Government is asked to allow such a commission to visit Germany as soon as possible and is informed that the United States will be glad to permit at any time a similar commission of neutral inspectors to visit invalid German prisoners in the United States with a view to their internment in a neutral country for repatriation. The German Government is further requested to permit the immediate internment in Switzerland of certain prisoners whose cases would obviously come under any schedule of disabilities later agreed upon.

A definite schedule of disabilities has been sent to Germany by mail.

Thus far no answer to the proposal has been received from the Government of Germany.

The next three months' supply of mutton for all state institutions will be furnished by the state farm at Yountville, state purchasing Agent McMillin has announced. The sheep were fattened on feed raised on the farm. The Napa farm, says McMillin, also will supply fresh beef to the Veteran's Home and the Napa state home.

The material which was reported to be in transport to begin work on Burr avenue was for storm drain use. Work is under headway on the drain over the properties of Mr. Witham and Dr. Salisbury. The drain is a commodious affair of concrete which connects with the drain on the Forrester place. This will mark the settlement of all questions which have arisen anent storm waters from time to time on these places.

The electric storm which began Sunday evening at dark was attended with the usual thunder and lightning and what was so unusual was the intensity of both. The lightning "chained and zigzagged" over the mountains to the north all night. Oodles of rain fell, eradicating orchardists and gardeners. The storm was accompanied by wind at intervals. About dawn the skies were clear again. Electric service in the homes was intermittently interrupted.

The Improvement meeting, June 29, was a busy one. The chief interest was a talk by Supervisor Dodge of South Pasadena, who represents the interests of this section. A call had been made by letter for representative men from La Canada to attend a meeting in Los Angeles to apportion some of the Flood Control moneys. Mr. Dodge spoke on that question, on the opening and closing of the bridge at Devil's Gate, on the plans for the new bridge at that point, on the Tujunga bridge, on what they hoped to accomplish this summer. Mr. Dodge also catalogued the different objects the supervisors overlook, naming the man or men in control of each and had a brief commendatory word for all. A film was shown which pictured all the presidents from Washington to Wilson inclusive. The illustrated history of "Old Glory" was also shown. A committee of five was chosen by Mr. Knight, the president of the Association, to confer on the labor supply for use in this locality. The idea is then to combine with the Farm Bureau along these lines. The committee appointed was Mrs. Granger, Mrs. Seright, Mrs. Metcalf, Mr. Jewett, Max Green. A meeting was called for Tuesday evening, July 2, 8 o'clock at Mrs. Granger's.

Mrs. Claire Coombs, who delighted a La Canada audience recently and was to have been heard July 12 again in behalf of the Red Star Animal Relief, has sent word that her engagement must be canceled, but promises to come in the future. Mrs. Coombs was ordered by the Government to report for duty in another quarter.

less removed, might prove an entering wedge for bill boards. If Mr. Austin had the case stated to him no doubt it would be removed. Or, perhaps the land owner where the sign is placed might see it in the right light and take the offending board away.

An agreement has been reached in the discussion concerning the lot on which the church stands. The compromise was suggested by Frank Lanterman and in effect is this: The land to be the church property while the church is used as a church, and if at any time it ceases to be used thus, it will then revert to the community for park purposes.

Farm Bureau meets Thursday, July 11, at the schoolhouse. A new assistant director will be present, who will make an address on small crops. Mrs. Jessica Hazzard will talk on food conservation, canning, etc. The special topic of the evening is the Government organization of a Woman's Home Department for canning and conserving of fruits, vegetables, etc. As the Government has contracted for almost the entire output of all canning factories, people will be unable to buy any canned goods. Hence you must can or you'll go hungry. The Government pays the salary of an expert and the Farm Bureau the expenses of a demonstrator along these lines. Come and hear all about it. Women are specially invited.

This is one of the letters received in response to the receipt of a pair of socks by a boy in camp at Fort Scott:

Dear Madam:

I received a pair of lovely woolen socks from you this morning, through the Army and Navy League. From here we go east and then probably "over there." I am sure the work and kindness of you and other persons will be of greater help than you will ever think. Our appreciation and thanks I am sure can be better expressed by deeds and actions than by words.

Sincerely,

DR. JESSIE RUSSELL, CANDIDATE FOR GENERAL ASSEMBLY

WOMAN FOR ASSEMBLY

DR. JESSIE A. RUSSELL YESTERDAY ANNOUNCED HER CANDIDACY FOR LEGISLATURE

After thoroughly considering the question, Dr. Russell decided to become a candidate for the legislature from this district. She has been endorsed as a candidate by some of the most prominent men and women in the state who are vitally interested in legislation and have had a wide experience at sessions of the legislature.

Although Dr. Russell is a Republican, owing to her wide acquaintance throughout the district she has been urged by representatives of all parties to permit the circulation of nominating petitions for all parties and has consented, consequently her name will appear on the Republican, Prohibition, Democratic, and Progressive ballots. These representatives claim that while party lines in National politics must necessarily be maintained, State legislation is now of such a character as to call for a candidate of broad comprehension of the needs of the hour rather than one strictly partisan in politics. The general impression is that she will be elected at the primaries.

Women active in civic, social welfare, and legislative work have urged Dr. Russell's candidacy, among these being Mrs. Chester Ashby, President of the Los Angeles Ebell Club; Mrs. Hester T. Griffith, Past State President of the W. C. T. U. and Vice-President of the Women's Legislative Council of California; Mrs. Clarence Van Graham, President of the Woman's City Club; Mrs. Lloyd W. Harmon, Past President of the Los Angeles District California Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Martha W. Law, President of the Los Angeles Federation W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Frederick Houser, President of the Alhambra Women's Club; Mrs. W. H. Anderson, State Recording Secretary California Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. M. E. Johnson, President of the Wednesday Morning Club; Mrs. Jane Beatty, of the Highland Park Ebell.

More than 300 women and a large number of men in the district have already offered their support in campaigning for Dr. Russell.

It is generally conceded by men and women alike that women should be represented in the legislature, especially this year, when measures of vital importance to humanity will be considered.

Dr. Russell has for over twenty years been active in legislative lines. Prior to coming to California 14 years ago, she worked for humanitarian measures in Eastern legislatures, and was often present at the sessions at Washington when important measures were pending; consequently she has had a wide opportunity to secure much practical knowledge. She has assisted in drafting some of the most important humanitarian laws which have been passed in recent years in this state. One of a special interest to women referring to community property, which was endorsed by the Women's Riverside county dairymen are preparing a plan to be presented to county authorities whereby milk distribution throughout the county will become a municipal function. If this fails they plan to form a co-operative association and pool their interests. Lower milk prices are promised to result.

Paul Valles, deputy county consul, has recommended to the board of supervisors that they arrange the parole of county jail prisoners serving sentences for misdemeanors, in order that the prisoners may help harvest the 1918 crops.

Legislative Council and passed in the last legislative session.

Dr. Russell has been prominently identified with various lines of activity since she retired from active practice as a physician, having been the first president of the Sixth street Parent-Teacher Association and also of the Parent-Teacher Federation in this city; for eight years she was a member of the State Executive Board of the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations and a year ago was elected state president of the same organization; she is chairman of the Women's Committee of the County Council of Defense, having been unanimously elected to these positions by large delegated bodies of women. She was for four years vice-president of the Los Angeles Woman's City Club and has been legislative chairman of a number of organizations, including the Tropico Thursday Afternoon Club and the Glendale Tuesday Afternoon Club. She is an officer of the Women's Legislative Council of California, which is composed of all women's organizations in the state, and a member of the Glendale W. C. T. U. and the Friday Morning Club of Los Angeles.

Since coming to Glendale nine years ago Dr. Russell has taken an active part in the civic life of this valley, always enthusiastically supporting any movement promoting the welfare of the community.

Dr. Russell has studied law at the College of Law, University of Southern California, and many of the most prominent women and men throughout the district have proffered their support, realizing that because of her knowledge of law and broad experience in legislative matters she is thoroughly qualified to cope with the complex problems which confront a legislator.

The principal planks in Dr. Russell's platform are:

A Strong "Win the War" Program. National Prohibition.

National Suffrage (if submitted for ratification by the States). Retrenchment of state expenses through the elimination of all unnecessary expense and exercise the utmost economy in all matters pertaining to the State government, without the curtailment of the practical educational needs of the hour.

Although repeatedly urged to make a statement, Dr. Russell has refused to discuss her candidacy or give it any thought until the work of the various organizations with which she is connected was officially closed for the year, so as in no way even indirectly seem to use them for political purposes. She is positively opposed to the use of any educational, social welfare, or war defense organization for political purposes.

Dr. Russell was urged into the campaign by her friends with the understanding that there would be no energy, time, or money wasted in campaigning when there is so much war work to be done.

She has been very active in war work and does not intend to neglect that but will assist her friends in thoroughly organizing the district for a successful campaign in order to be elected at the primaries, thereby saving the time and energy of a campaign throughout the summer.

Employees of the Miami copper mines and their families are being vaccinated free of charge by their company physicians as a means of warding off a threatened typhoid epidemic. There have been several persons stricken but prompt "cleanup" measures, disinfecting and an anti-camp campaign, together with vaccination, are preventing a serious spread.

DOLORES

blood to her already flushed cheeks. "Will you tell me the time?" "Si senorita," replied the Mexican, and his easy manner caused Dolores to forget her confusion. "son las cuatro y media."

"I beg your pardon. I do not speak Spanish although I was born in Spain."

"I see," said the man. "Well, I said it is half past four."

"O," exclaimed the girl, "so late."

Then thanking him graciously, she resumed her journey.

The light buggy had nearly reached the farther end of the bridge when the driver alighted, passed around his horse as if to adjust the harness, then stood caressing the animal until Dolores approached.

"Would Senorita like to ride?" he asked, again raising his hat, and the girl noticed the moist, black ringlets across his forehead, "she seems to be very tired."

"I'm not tired," she replied almost cheerfully, "but I lost my purse down town and started to walk home with new shoes on. But perhaps the gentleman isn't going as far as—"

"Never mind how far," he interrupted, "I will take the little girl home," and before she could speak he had lifted her into the buggy and they were on the way.

"It was hard luck to lose your money a hot day like this."

"Yes, I thought so too at first, but I don't mind now, and I'm having such a nice little ride."

"I see," said the man and before either spoke again they had reached the Stevens' residence.

"Maybee," remarked the Mexican as he lifted the tiny Dolores from the buggy, "the senorita would like another little ride some evening?"

"Maybee," she echoed, and before she could thank him he was gone.

The following Monday was another warm day and a busy one, too, for Dolores, as Mondays always were, but there was never too much work for her—extra duties never fretted her nor detracted a jot from her sweet and amiable disposition. Indeed, Mrs. Stevens had often been heard to say: "The harder the day, the happier the girl," so cheerful, willing and lovable was her little maid at all times.

But Dolores seemed happier than ever before, if such were possible. She went about her simple household duties as though they were only play and when all were finished she would take up her own sewing or do some fancy work, in which she delighted and which constituted her one extravagance.

So, this warm afternoon, she got her embroidery and went down to the swinging seat in the pergola. It was cool down there, a soft breeze was blowing and the air was redolent with the perfume of honeysuckle and roses. She curled up in one corner of the seat, spread her silks out beside her, opened up her work, and scanned it over admiringly.

It was a large centerpiece done in lilacs and was nearly finished now. How beautiful it would be! She looked it over closely for defects, but every stitch seemed rightly placed, every leaf and petal correctly shaded and every blossom perfect.

Usually her fingers fairly danced over such work as this, but today she admired more than she worked.

The big maltese house cat sprang upon the seat beside her and she stopped to caress him. He was such a nice pet and so much company when she was alone.

Little birds splashed in an earthen basin she had placed for them on the trunk of an old tree that had been sawed off and left in the back lawn, nobody knew why, but which had developed into quite an ornament now that it was hidden in a mass of pink climbing geraniums.

No, she just could not embroider. She shook the seat a little and the cat crept into her lap. She threw her work aside, took him in her arms, slid down to the edge of the seat until she could touch the ground with her foot and start the swing, then she swung and swung, as a thousand different thoughts passed through her mind. Would she ever use this pretty centerpiece? Mrs. Stevens had told her she could get lots of money for it, but she would rather keep it herself, and why shouldn't she, after a while, have beautiful things, too. Perhaps she would buy a pink and white Persian ribbon, instead of a plain pink one. Yes, she had forgotten all about her purse and her swollen feet. But who could that kind man be who had brought her home? Surely she had seen him, but where? For four days now she had thought of little else, those black ringlets, the quiet smile, the—but was that the bell?

She dropped the cat and hurrying into the house found a messenger at the door. He eyed her impertinently as she received the missive from his hand, but she did not notice. She saw only her name on the envelope.

Three hours later Dolores sat in the dimly lighted reception hall, her eyes wandering from the clock to the open door then back to the clock again. Many times she had sat in that same chair waiting for the tiny door above the face of the clock to spring open and the little bird appear and "cuckoo" the hour, but tonight she listened for the sound of wheels. Just two minutes more and—"O, there he is," she exclaimed and, closing the door gently, she hastened down the walk to meet Jose Rodriguez for the second time.

BUY IN GLENDALE

AND BY SO DOING:

1. Build up stronger business concerns in your city.
2. Keep the money circulating where it will have a chance to come back to you.
3. The more patronage the local dealer gets the cheaper he will be able to sell and the larger the assortment of goods he will be able to carry in stock.
4. Every dollar spent with your home merchant stimulates local enterprise,—adds to the taxable property in your city which aids in keeping up the schools and the municipal expenses of the city.
5. There is something truly patriotic in the principle of buying at home,—the practice makes a stronger commercial center.
6. At least try your home merchant first, give him a chance to show merchandise and quote prices.
7. Always bear in mind that increased patronage puts a merchant in a position to carry a greater assortment of goods, and by buying in large quantities can sell in many instances for lower prices.
8. Boost--home enterprise today--tomorrow and forever
